Three years of wanting her. Twelve days to win her.
But he's not the only one hoping for a Christmas miracle...

A rockstar with a bad boy reputation, Christian Steele is used to being misunderstood. But when Haley Templeton—his best friend's sister and the woman he's secretly loved for years—looks at him with such disappointment, it cuts deep.

Forced to seek refuge in Haley's London home, Christian sees his chance to prove he's more than the lies told about him. Perhaps even show her what she means to him... but that's a problem when he can't reveal the full truth about why he's here rather than competing on a celebrity reality show to save Haley's beloved animal rescue.

Haley Templeton's perfect Christmas is thrown into chaos when Christian appears on her doorstep. With her vet nurse job and the fate of the Canine Haven Dog Rescue hanging in the balance, she had all her hopes pinned on him.

But instead of being in Scotland filming Wild For The Win, Christian's here, hiding out in her spare room while tempting her with every smile and making her wonder if she's misjudged him all along.

As decorations go up and guards come down, Christian and Haley find themselves drawn into a game more dangerous than any reality show. With the rescue's future at stake and their hearts on the line, can they unwrap the truth—and a love that's been hiding in plain sight—in only twelve days?

And here, just for you, my newsletter subscribers, is a sneak peek at the other two very important characters in this book. Until later this month when I'll do a little reveal on social media, you are one of a very small group who have met Haley's two rescue dogs, Tully and Mularkey. Both the cover image and these gorgeous dog pics are the work of Kiwi artist Ollie (@ollie_creates) Say hello to the girls!

monthly book giveaway

Sharing my favourite reads

It's a bit of a shock to me to find that two of my favourite books of the last month have involved an accidental pregnancy. And yes, that's how Win and Bo's story begins, but Out On A Limb is so much more than that.

This is a beautifully touching, funny and uplifting book, where two perfectly imperfect people find friendship and eventually love in their shared commitment to their child. If you enjoy great banter, laugh-out-loud funny scenes and a love story that pulls at your heart strings then here it is!

I included both cover variations as each is beautiful. Enter the draw to receive a paperback copy of Out On A Limb by clicking below.

Last month, Barb was the winner of a copy of The Cheat Sheet, the book that's turned me into a Sarah Adams fan!

author update

Caroline's writing life

This last month has disappeared in the blink of an eye! And the next isn't looking any less busy, although I wouldn't have it any other way. It's hard not to get overwhelmed when deadlines start to get real. Although I'm generous with my time estimates, and I set realistic pre order dates, there's always this lurking fear that something is going to go wrong and an avalanche of problems will rain down on my head and get in the way of publication.

But here we are! The Twelve Days Of Christian will be out on November 12th. The print book has just gone live, which is super exciting. If you see it on Amazon, please ignore the crazy price! This strategy of launching it early at an inflated price serves two purposes.

First, it buys me time to get hold of an author copy and do one last check with the book in my hands. Although it has been read through over and over, including printed out on paper, it's never the same as reading the actual book. I'm hoping the typo gremlins haven't wormed their way into it anywhere, but this way I can be sure.

The second reason is it allows my lovely ARC readers to start posting reviews ahead of the official launch date. This really helps with preorders and early sales. I'm so grateful to this amazing group who gives up their time to read and give feedback.

Writers talk about their characters talking to them, and crazy as it may seem, it's true. Geordie and Jenna in Blindsided By You are back in business, disturbing my sleep. I recently reread everything I've written so far on this book and really loved it. So, every morning they're the first people I greet when I get up. I'm tentatively working towards an April release for this one.

Meanwhile, Rachel and Teddy from Not My Little Drummer Boy, the second book in the Stellar Riot Christmas series, have also started to nag at me. I'm not giving in to writing too much of their story just yet, but their characters and some important aspects of the plot are developing steadily.

I feel incredibly grateful that, although I should have started writing years ago, I get to do this thing I love, and it's so much fun sharing it with you.

Books, films and music

Reading: Life has been super busy, however, I thought with a holiday, I'd get more reading in. I didn't, but it has ended up being a quality over quantity month. Here are some of my favourites:

♥️ Play With Me by Becca Mack. Hockey season has started and I'm firmly stuck in my hockey romance era. The books in this series are long and super spicy but the fun banter and character development keep me hooked (they are long books!)

♥️ The Mistake by Elle Kennedy. Yes I'm also hooked on this Off Campus college hockey series. I'm currently reading the next book, The Score.

♥️ You Again by Kate Goldbeck. I loved this enemies to friends to lovers set in NYC. Two diverse and refreshing characters and a quirky love story.

♥️ Ready Or Not by Cara Bastone. Also set in NYC, this time in Brooklyn. The sweet MMC charmed me, and I overcome my aversion to the accidental pregnancy trope with this delightful story.

♥️ When The Moon Hatched by Sarah A. Parker. What to read if you're a romantasy fan waiting for the next Rebecca Yarros or Sarah J. Maas. There are dragons and kingdoms. First book of how many? Not sure but I'm definitely keen for the next one, sadly not due until fall 2025.

♥️ The Valley by Chris Hammer. This author always delivers stories that are a captivating mix of crime, history, families and friends, with a love story woven in. Set in Australia, his descriptions of the settings make you feel you're right there. This is the seventh of his I've read and I highly recommend the audiobooks.

Watching: I've just blasted through all four seasons of Emily In Paris. How have I not watched this before? Sex And The City creator Darren Star brings another story of a young woman making her way in an iconic city, with friends, work, life and love. Then there's the clothes! I loved this one a lot and I'm so pleased there will be a fifth season.

Listening: It started with some live Sunday afternoon music in a bar, and one song, Dakota. I really loved this song and added it to the Twelve Days playlist. Since then, I've been exploring more of Welsh band, Stereophonics back catalogue. I was excited to see they have concerts in the UK summer of 2025. Now just have to plan a way to be in the UK for that...

caroline's corner

Welcome to my world

The holiday was a blast! Not only did we visit some beautiful spots, it was a bit of a pilgrimage for me. For the FMCs in Tangled In Time (Blair) and Tangled Past (her daughter, Cassie) Tekapo is a special place. I loved spending time there, imagining their lives in such a gorgeous town nestled beside the most stunning lake. I could picture Blair and Daniel sitting lakeside, basking in the summer sunshine and their love for each other.

Or Cassie waiting for the school bus, wrapped up against the crisp morning air. With recent snow it certainly felt like winter lingered a little there.

While the fishing wasn't a roaring success (only one and that got away) the time away was the perfect mix of relaxation and work. Sitting in the campervan looking out on blue water and clear skies, I wrote, created promo images and managed NetGalley requests. Not a bad view from the office (see picture above).

Sadly this week it's back to the day job, but facing it only motivates me to work harder with my writing in the hope that one day it will be the day job.

I hope wherever you may be, spring or fall is being kind. I know some people have experienced natural disasters in the past week, and if that's you, I feel for you, having survived some tough times at the hand of mother nature myself.

Wishing you all the best as we head into one of my favourite times of the year— Halloween! Not that I need any excuse for pumpkin spice. For those who celebrate, have a fun time.
